UConn Appoints Stephen Pedneault as Adjunct Professor

(Glastonbury, CT) Stephen Pedneault, principal of Forensic Accounting Services LLC, Glastonbury, CT has been appointed by the University of Connecticut School of Business as an adjunct professor to the University's faculty.

Mr. Pedneault has authored an innovative and ground-breaking course for the Masters of Science in Accounting (MSA) program. The course, entitled "Accounting 346: Forensic Accounting" will be offered as an online class beginning with the summer semester, 2008. He will teach the course this summer and UConn will be offering it again in the fall semester.

"This is a significant high point in my career. I am honored and humbled that UConn selected me to represent my field and impart my knowledge to a future generation of potential forensic accountants. I have always had a passion to teach and this is an opportunity that I cherish," stated Stephen Pedneault, Forensic Accounting Services LLC. "I love what I do and hope I can inspire students with the enthusiasm that I have for my field."

The University of Connecticut School of Business is noted as one of the most comprehensive business schools in the country. Its faculty is recognized for its ability to prepare students to succeed in an ever-changing marketplace. The School of Business is well-known for its high quality academic and research programs in the areas as accounting, e-commerce, finance, management, marketing, and operations and information management.

"Stephen Pedneault was our first choice to create this new and innovative course in forensic accounting. His reputation in the field is stellar. We are very appreciative that he took the time out of his busy professional life to impart his expertise to the UConn community," stated Andrew J. Rosman, Ph.D. CPA, Director, MS and Internship Programs in Accounting, University of Connecticut.

The UConn course will provide an overview of forensic accounting, identify the qualities and attributes required of a forensic accountant and provide students with an approach and skill set to enable them to perform a forensic accounting assignment.

Stephen Pedneault, CPA (Certified Public Accountant), CFE (Certified Fraud Examiner) and FCPA (Forensic Certified Public Accountant), is the principal and founder of Forensic Accounting Services, LLC located in Glastonbury, CT.
